

Pango e Dillo

FRANCESCA
ORTONA

LORENZO
SANGIÒ

Pango e Dillo

FRANCESCA
ORTONA

LORENZO
SANGIÒ

Francesca Ortona - Lorenzo Sangiò
Pango and Dillo

English working translation by Sara Benjamin

© 2023 Editrice Il Castoro Srl
viale Andrea Doria 7, 20124 Milano
www.editriceilcastoro.it
info@editriceilcastoro.it

ISBN 979-12-5533-046-2

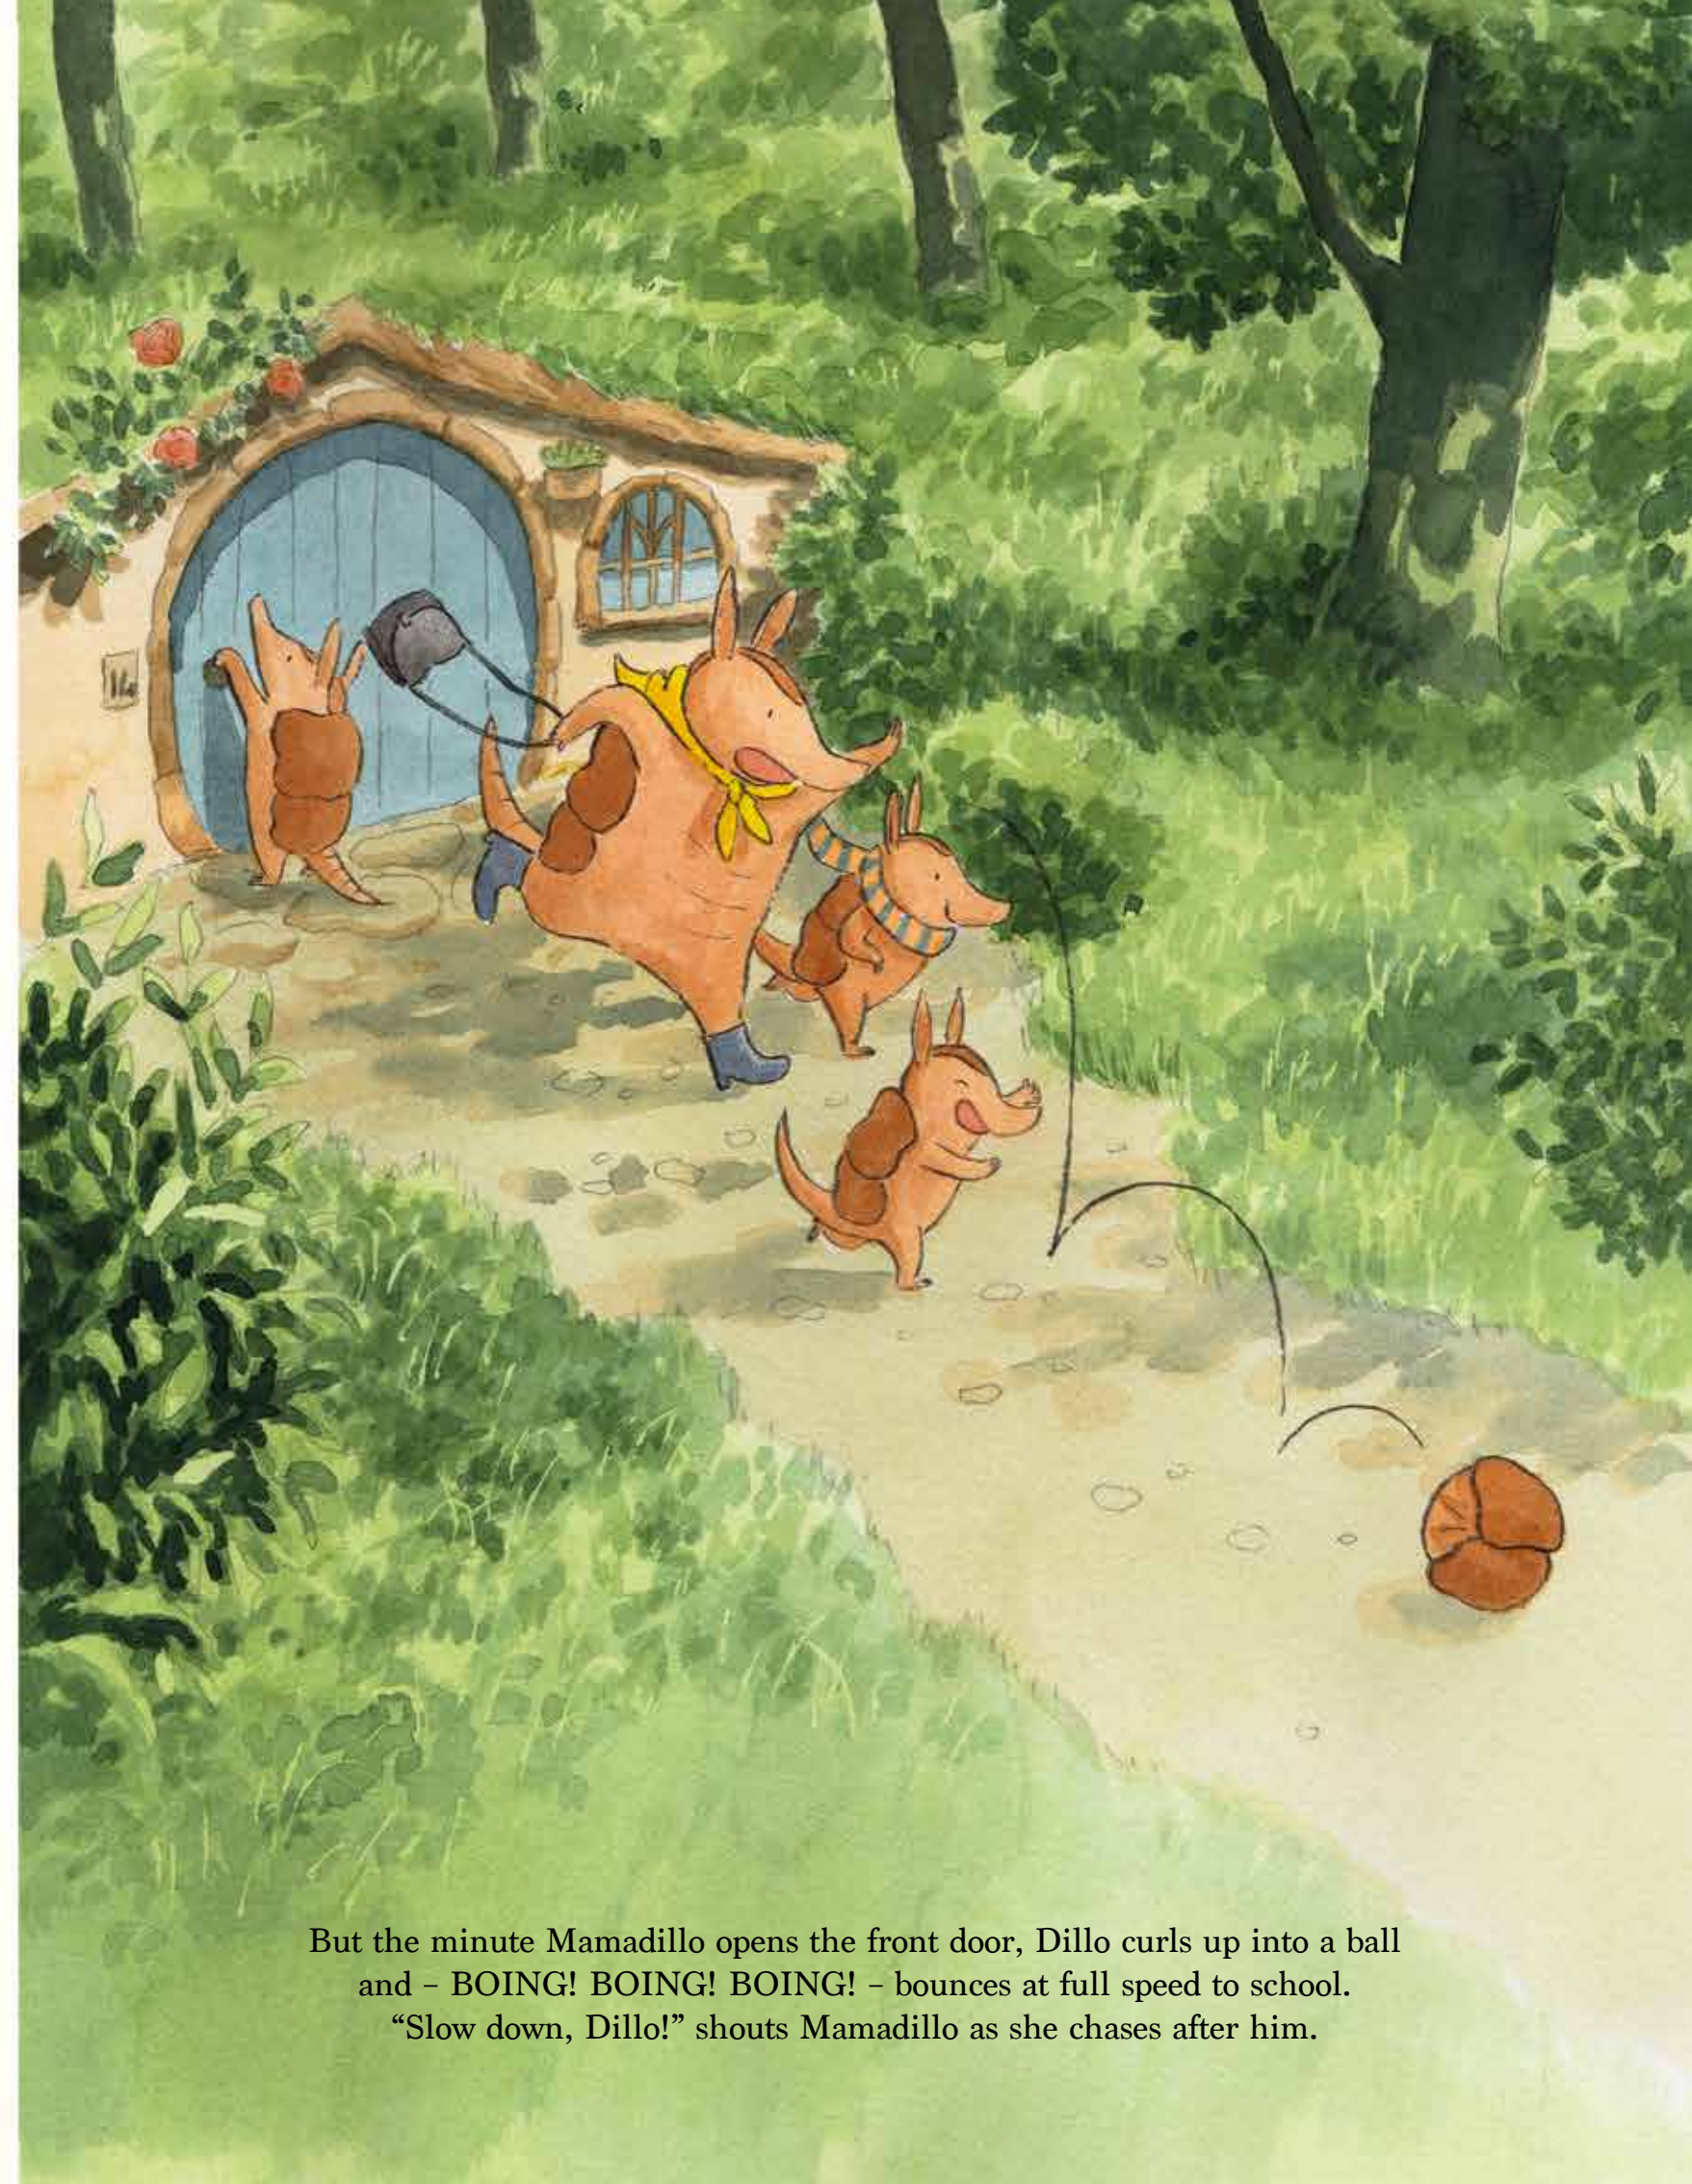

il castoro

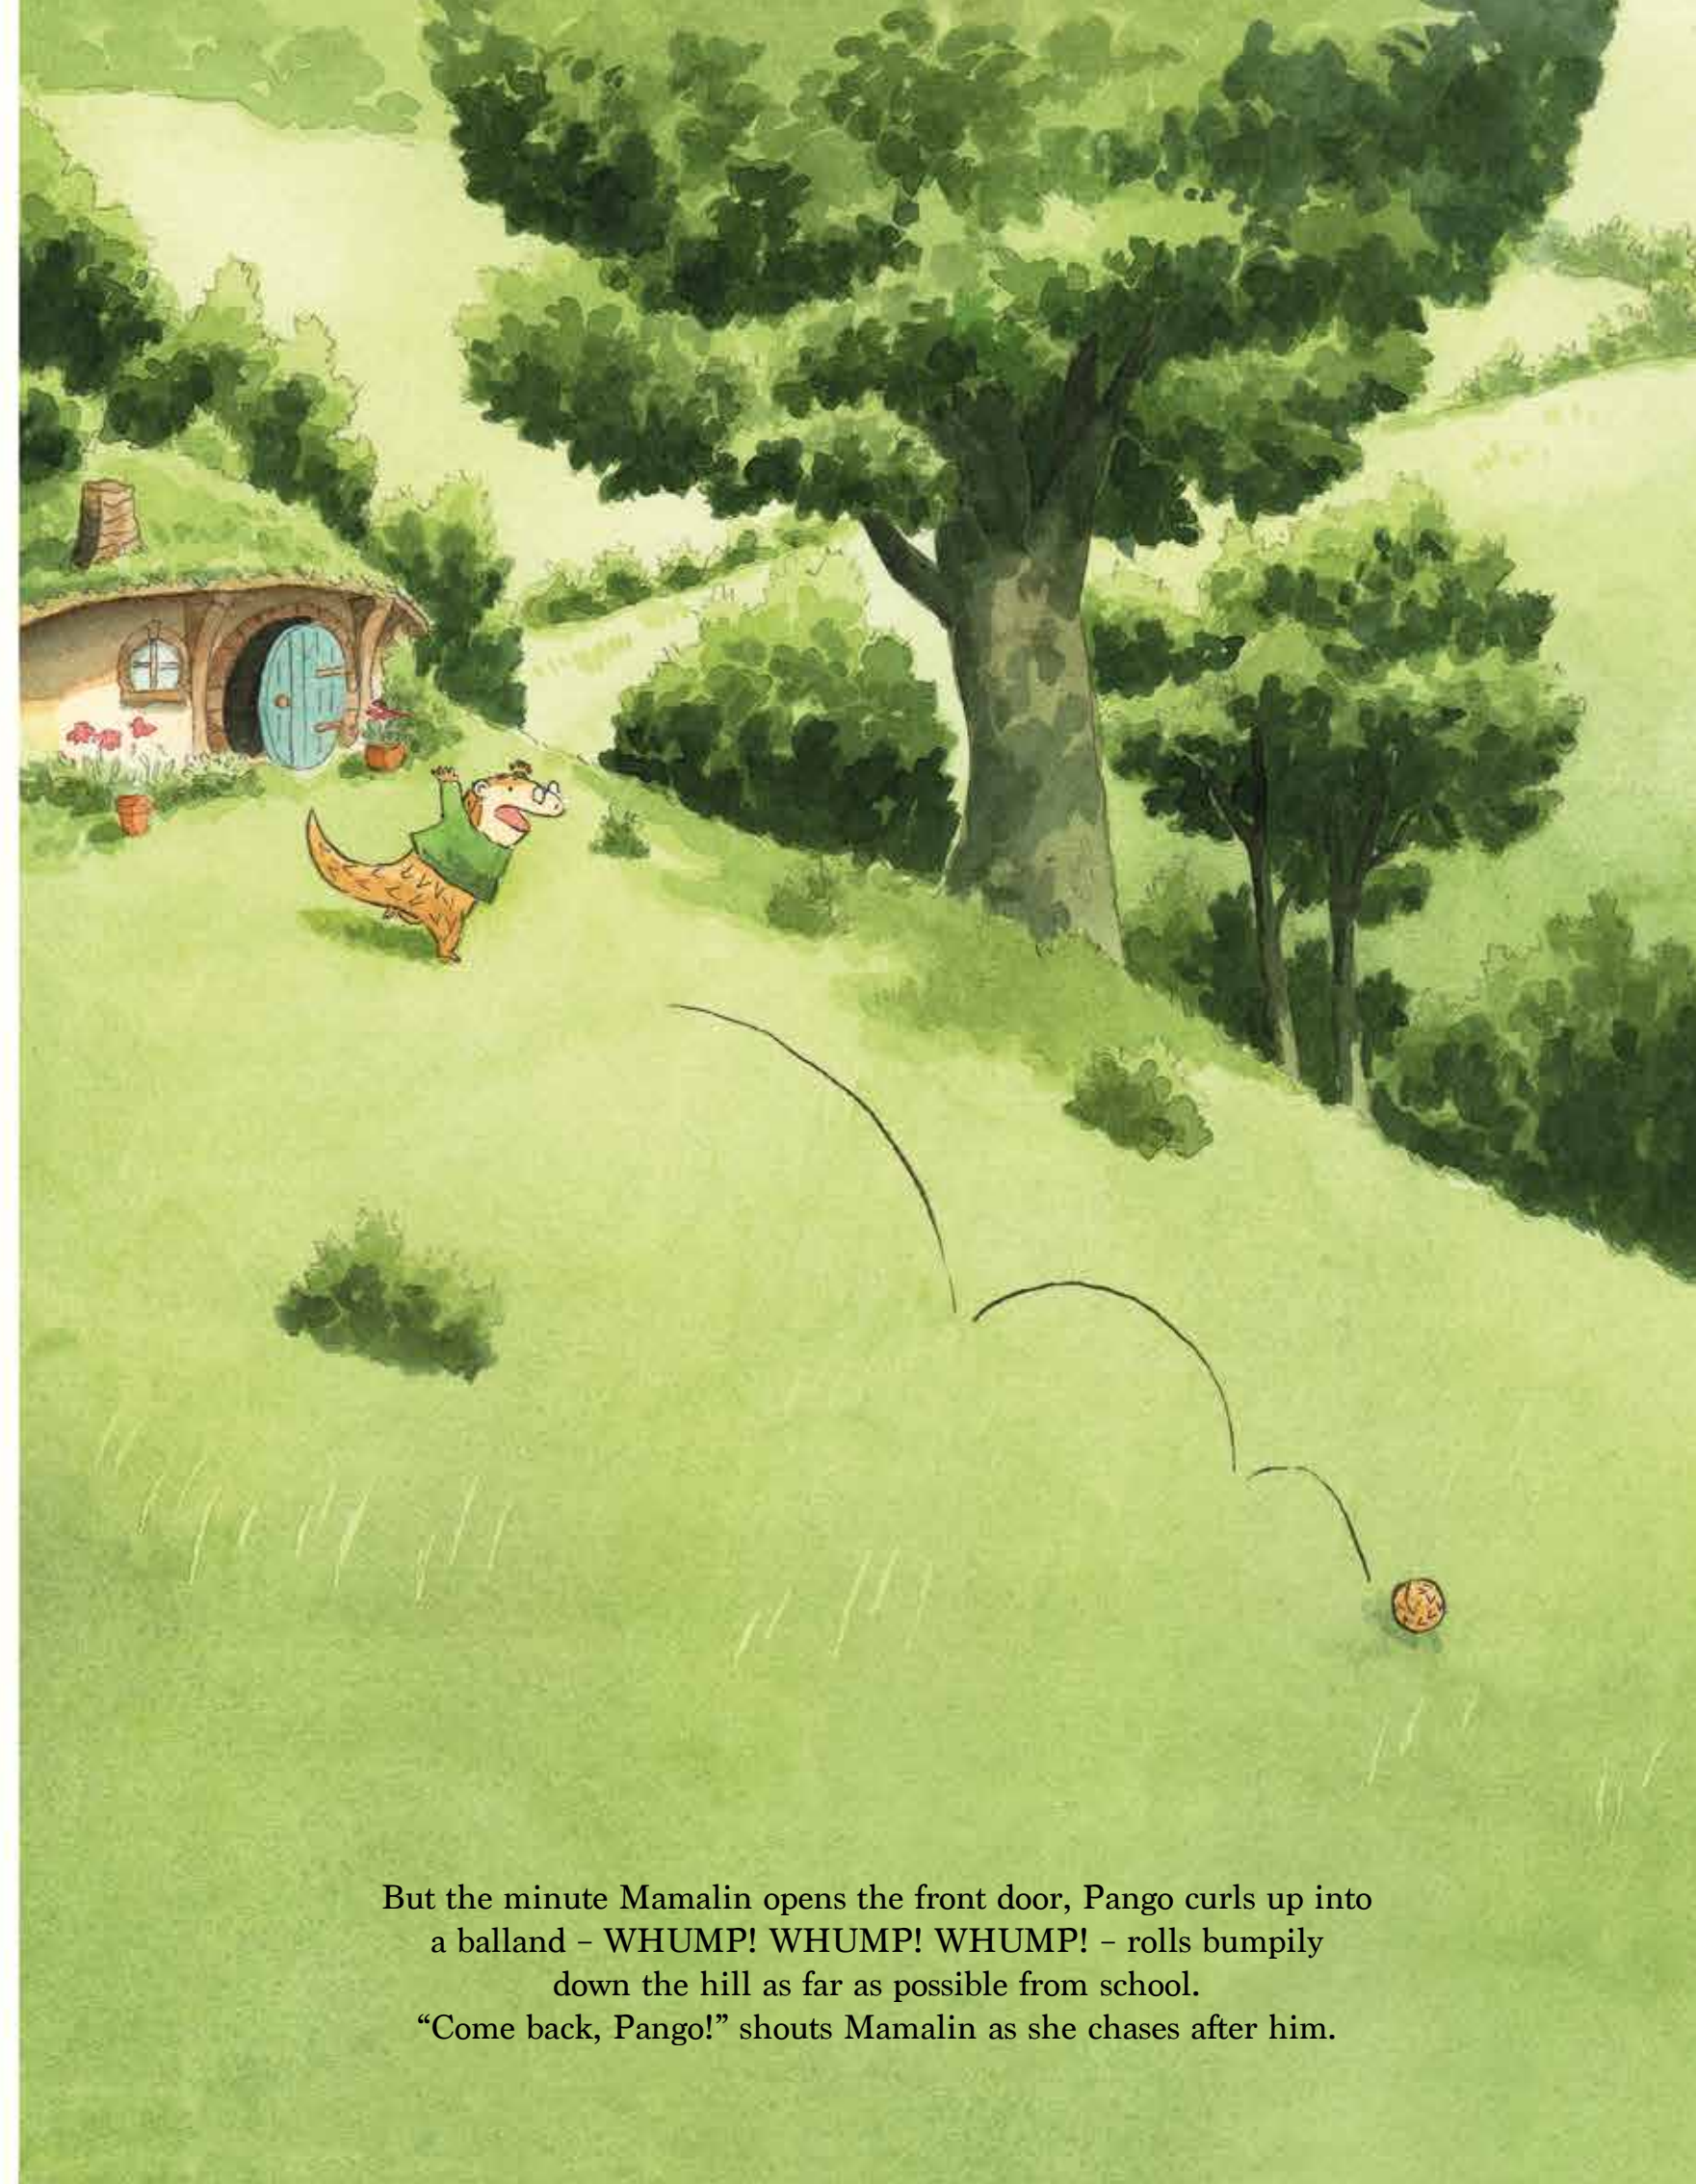

“Time to wake up!” trills Dillo the armadillo as he leaps out of bed.
Today is his first day of school.
“Come on, Mamadillo, get up!” he shouts, tugging on his mom’s tail.
“Calm down, Dillo, please!” Mamadillo groans.

But the minute Mamadillo opens the front door, Dillo curls up into a ball and – BOING! BOING! BOING! – bounces at full speed to school.
“Slow down, Dillo!” shouts Mamadillo as she chases after him.

“Can I stay in bed a tiny bit longer?” mumbles Pango the pangolin from beneath the covers.
Today is his first day of school.
“Come on, Pango, get up!” his mom answers, gently pulling on his tail.
“Not yet, Mamalin, please!” Pango groans.

But the minute Mamalin opens the front door, Pango curls up into a ball – WHUMP! WHUMP! WHUMP! – rolls bumpily down the hill as far as possible from school.
“Come back, Pango!” shouts Mamalin as she chases after him.

Dillo gets to school first.
“Good morning, Dillo,” croons Teacher Coco, doing a dainty little dance and ruffling her lovely feathers.
“Good morning!” replies Dillo, as happy as a clam.
He gives Mamadillo a kiss and dashes through the gateway.

Pango gets to school last.
“Good morning, Pango,” chirps Teacher Coco.
“NO!” shouts Pango, still curled up tight.
“Don’t worry, Ms. Pangolin, Pango’s going to be just fine with us,” the teacher says.

Dillo the armadillo is lively and outgoing.
Pango the pangolin is shy and a little bit fearful.
Today is their first day of school,
and also the day they'll discover the joy of friendship!

ISBN 979-12-5533-046-2

9 791255 330462

€ 14,50

www.editriceilcastoro.it